

Early Hi Vista Homesteader Dies

HI VISTA — Johnnie Bloom, half way into his 90th year at the time of his death, was buried in Lancaster last week following services performed by the Rev. E. H. Knoerschild of the Grace Lutheran Church.

Bloom was one of the first men to come to the Antelope Valley where he homesteaded 360 acres in the Hi Vista area. His wife passed away many years before him and he is survived by a son, Oscar, of Santa Monica and daughters Margaret and Alice and a sister, Ida Hansen, of Portland.
