

Mrs. G. S. Lindsay Critically Ill, Has A Major Operation

Mrs. G. S. "Spence" Lindsay was taken ill early this week and was rushed to the Methodist hospital where she underwent an operation for ulcers of the stomach. It was stated that the ulcers had broken and that her condition was critical.

Recent reports indicate that she has passed one crisis, and that another will take place within the next 24 hours. The first she sustained in a splendid manner.

While there is, of course, much anxiety concerning her condition, it is reported that if she passes the second crisis she will have a most encouraging chance for complete recovery.

Dr. Emerson Savage, her son-in-law, assisted in the operation.

The news of Mrs. Lindsay's sudden and critical illness came as a distinct shock to the community.
